

WOODWARD

TREASURES

1963

Cheri,

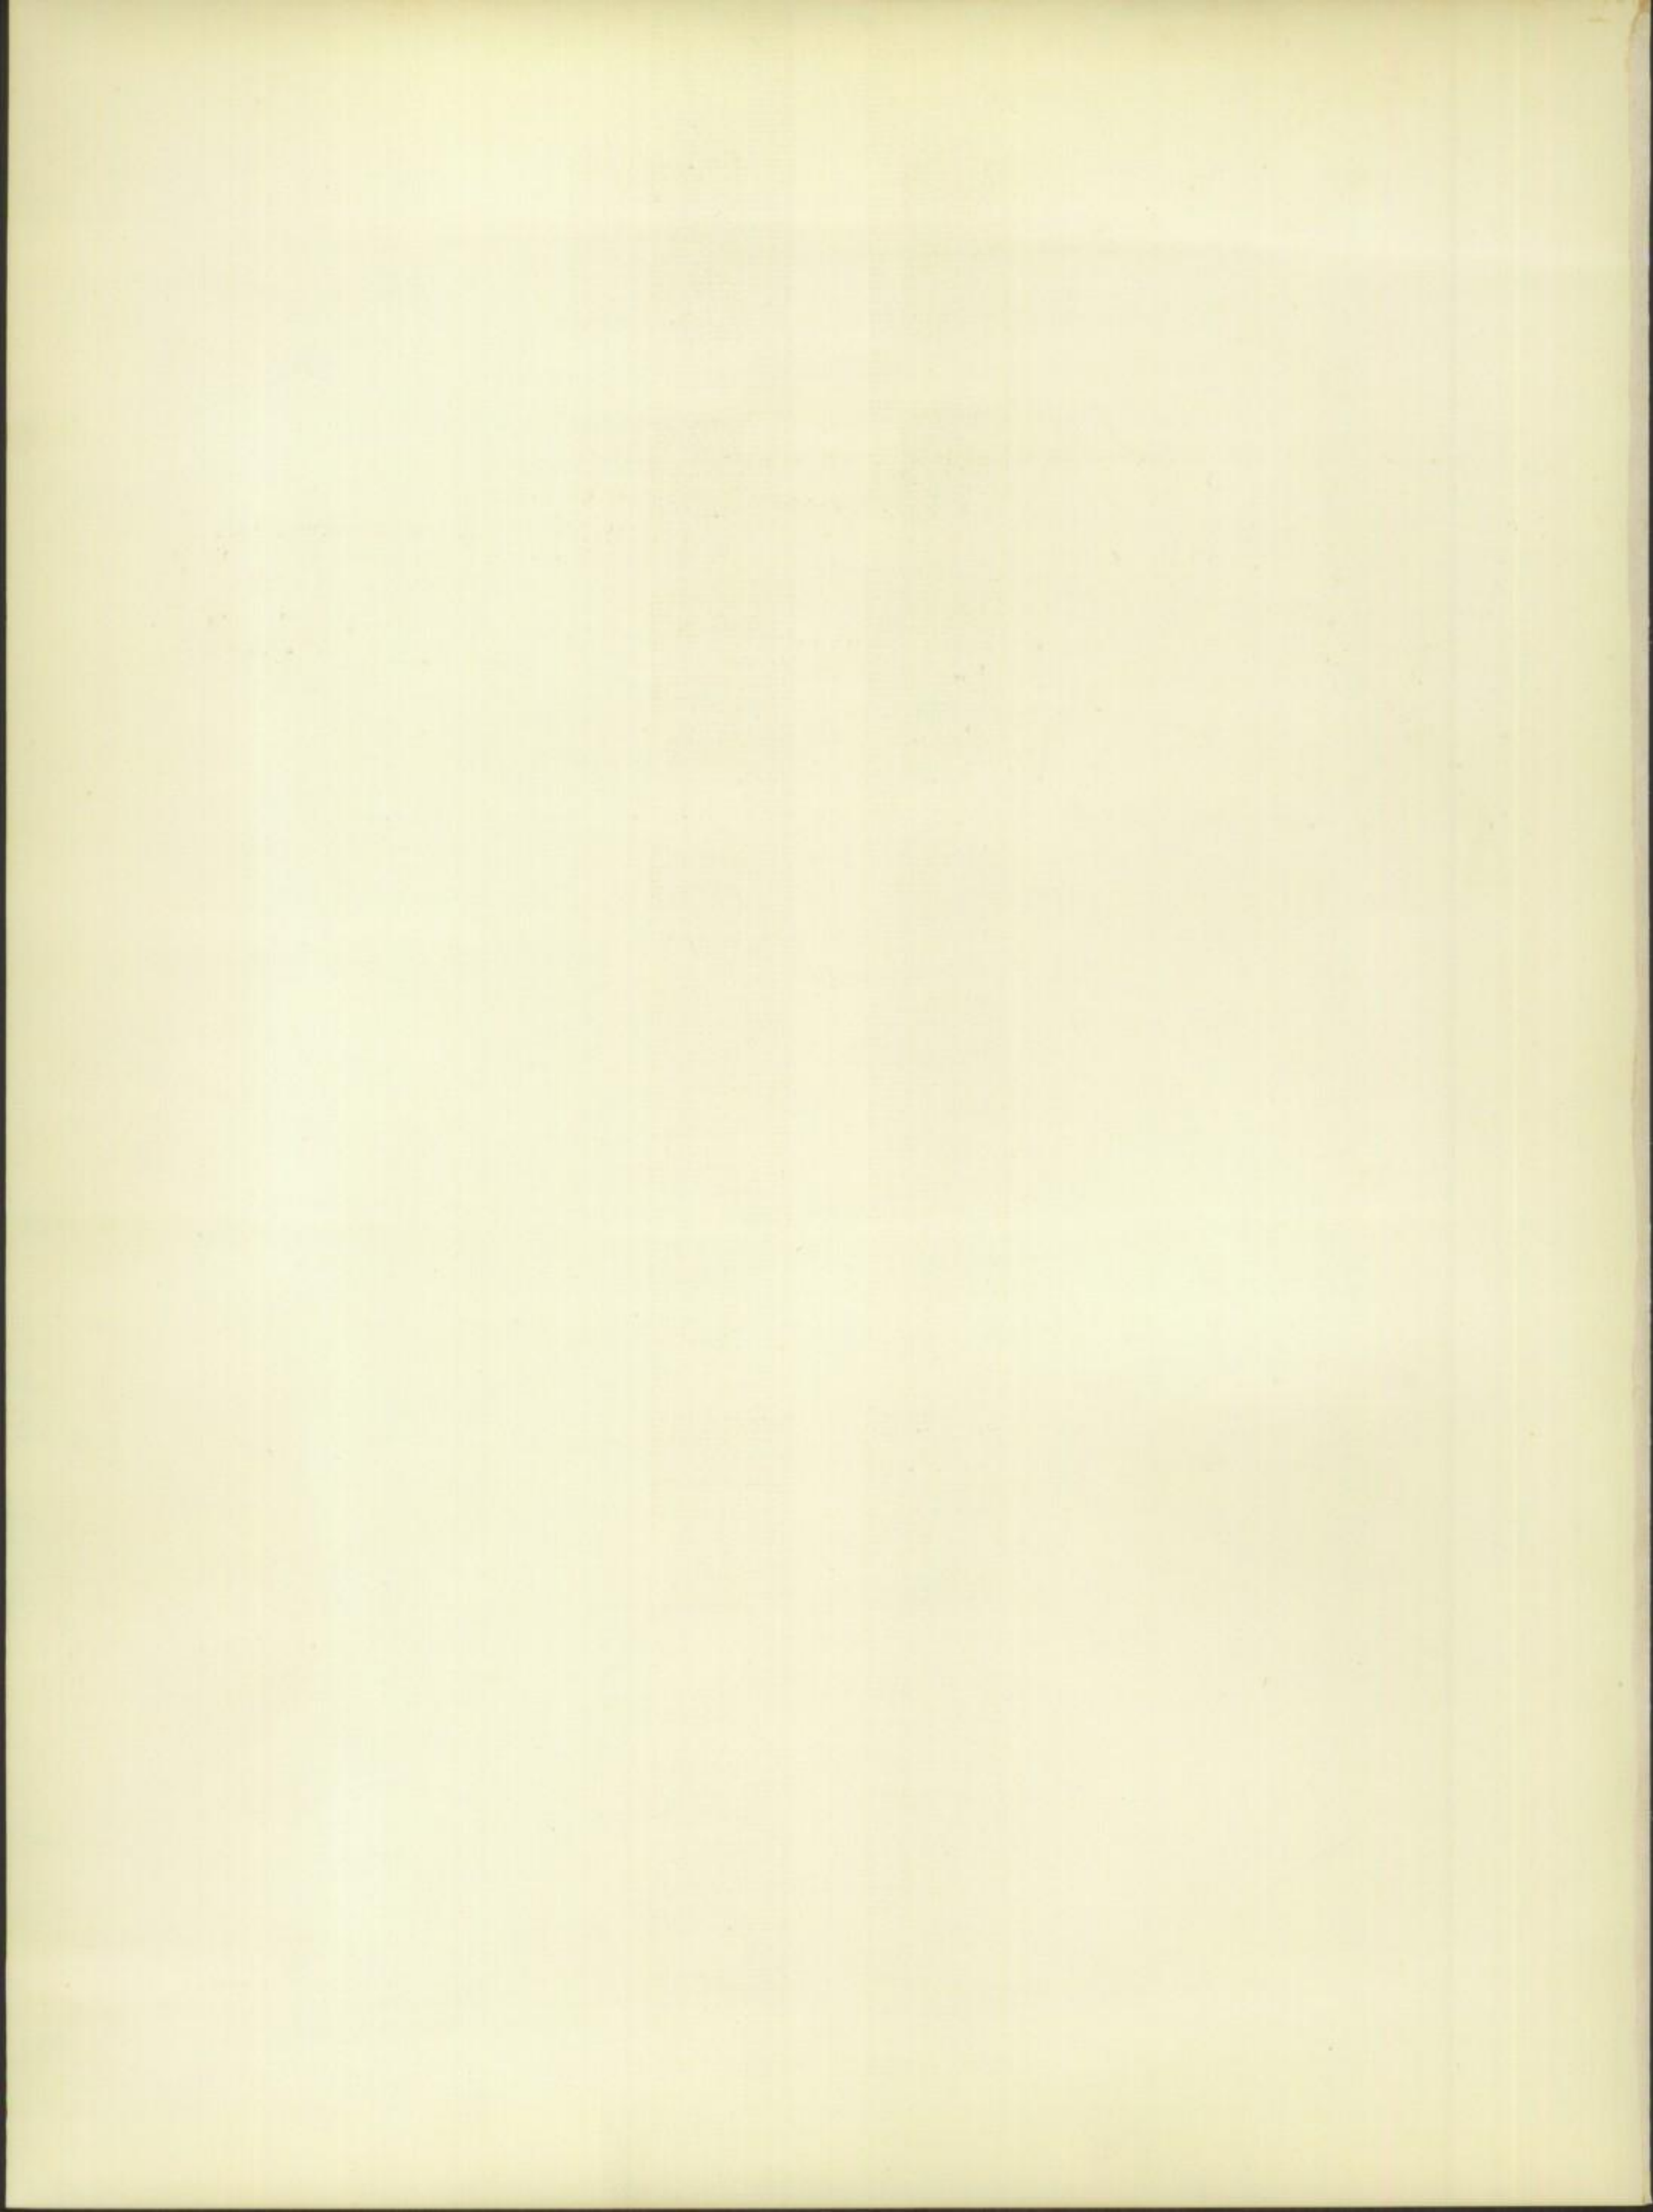

Believe it or not (I guess both) you have made my senior year at Woodward the best and most remembered.
I never want it to end. We've gone through a lot together both fun and some things that weren't so much fun and some and no more for the reason.
This seems like a good sign to me that we could go on forever. I love you very much and never want to lose you no matter what happens.
This coming summer is going to be one to remember and we will be together throughout it.
Next year when we part I'll be true to you and will think of you constantly.
I hope you will do the same things and who knows what the future will hold for us. You are made for ~~for~~ me and can never leave me no matter how hard you try (x if you try I'll break your pretty little head).
Now the year is coming to an end and we say good by to all the days of fun and try to grow up some and face the world. It will be easier for us because we said have someone to lean on and help us when we are in trouble. Let's keep it like this forever. I love you, I love you, I love you so very much and need your love to exist

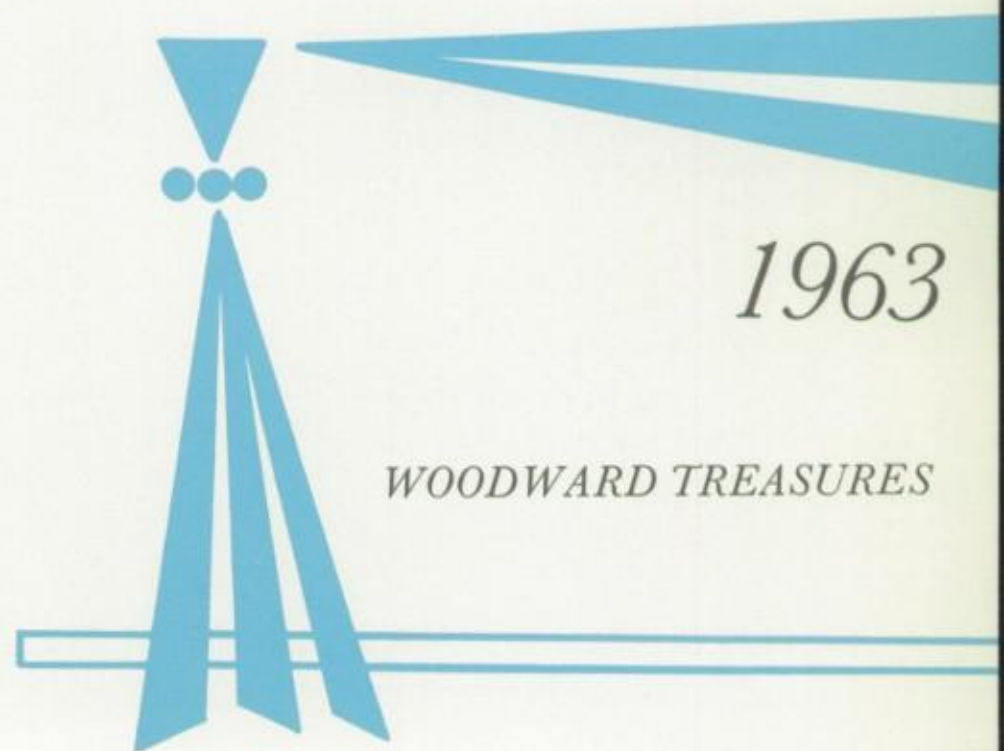

All my love and affection

WOODWARD TREASURES

ALL WOODWARD IS A STAGE...

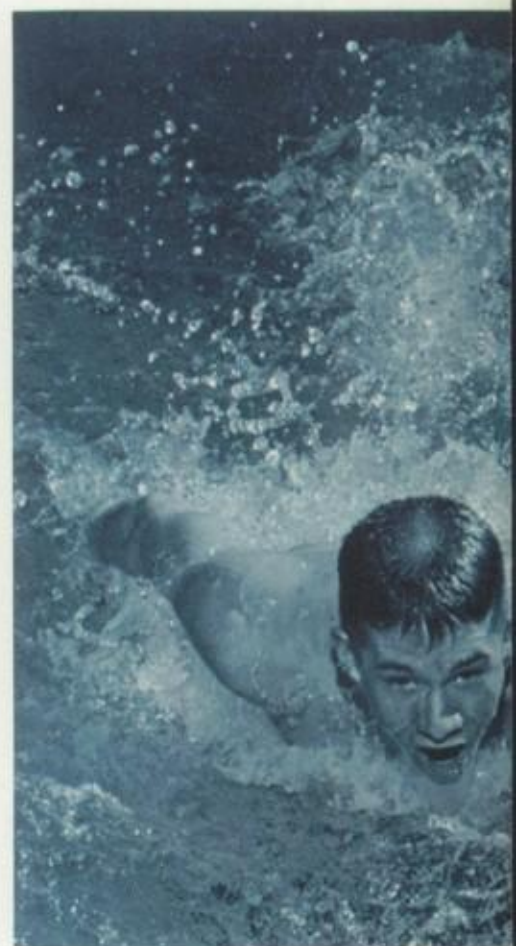

Pervading Woodward is all of the excitement, anticipation, and satisfaction of the theater. A single Woodward day reveals the wide action and expressive emotion of the finest drama. The character of three thousand young players is shaped by the struggle to discover fundamental meaning. Woodward is, in another sense, a stage in the development of all its players, a stage of life. The disciplines of learning and the subtle changes of growth climax in the realization of approaching adulthood. The Woodward stage includes all the vibrant experiences of expanding and dramatic adolescent life.

*... AND EACH
PLAYS MANY PARTS*

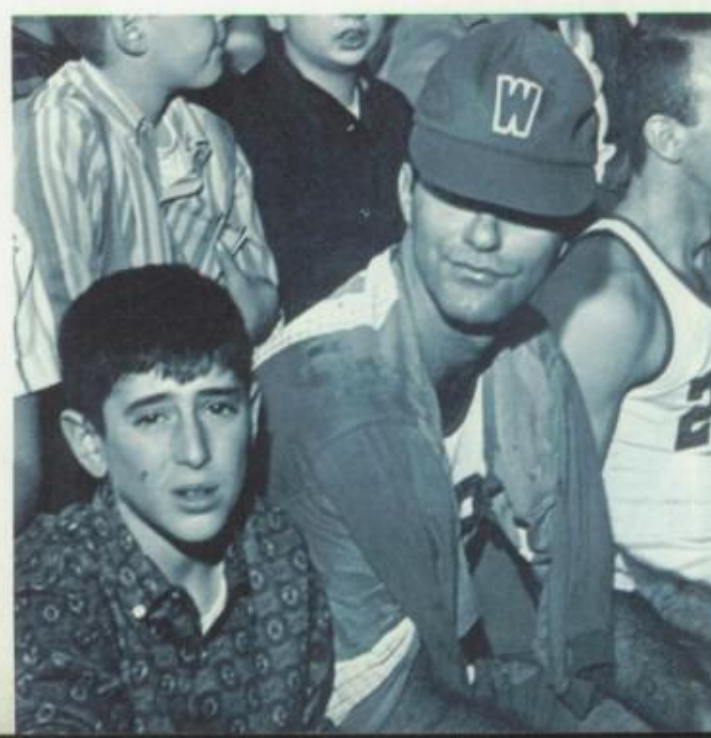

Each actor in the Woodward drama has many parts to play. The inquiring student is the central character on the Woodward stage. But the student quickly changes as he enacts the part of the athlete in varsity, reserve, and intramural sports, or as he accepts the diverse and challenging roles offered by school organizations and clubs. The teacher is at once scholar, instructor, adviser, and friend. As the varied roles intermingle, they assume a growing importance on the high school stage. An individual may change parts many times in the unfolding drama. And as each role is accepted and performed, the player approaches adulthood.

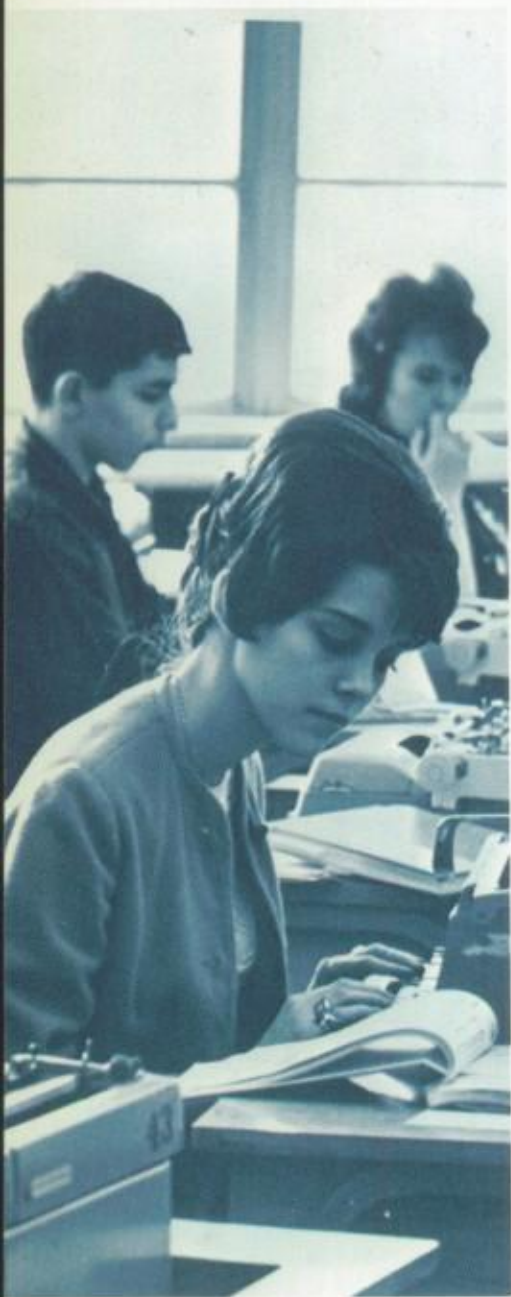

SPIRIT: the power that leads to activity

Within every Woodward student there is a need to be active, creative, and emotionally alive. From this need is born the spirit that resounds in the drama of school life — in the raucous noise of a football game, in each morning's main hall chaos, and in the reverence of the Thanksgiving assembly. Spirit is the flowering of all students' yearning for activity, for there is always the desire in their minds and the power in their hearts to express themselves with constant vitality.

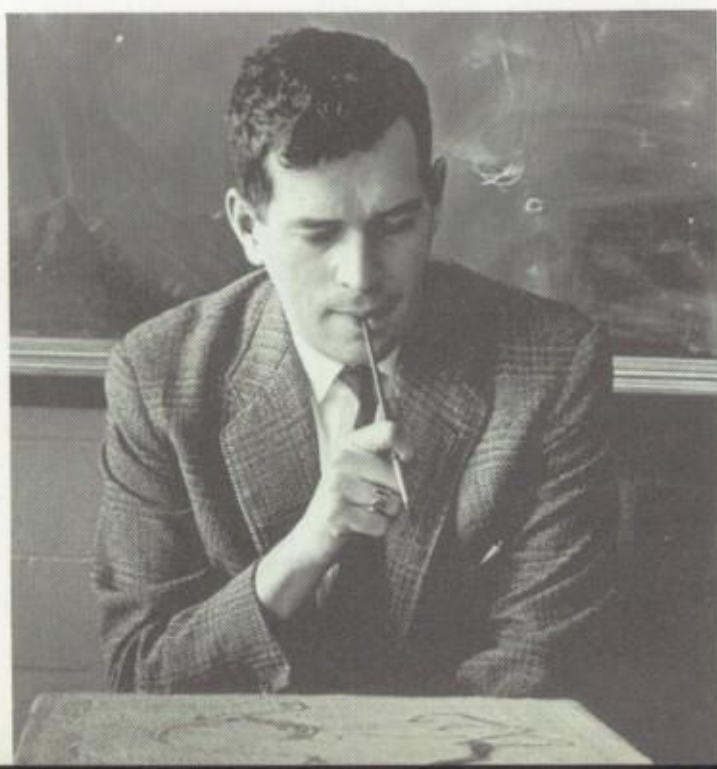

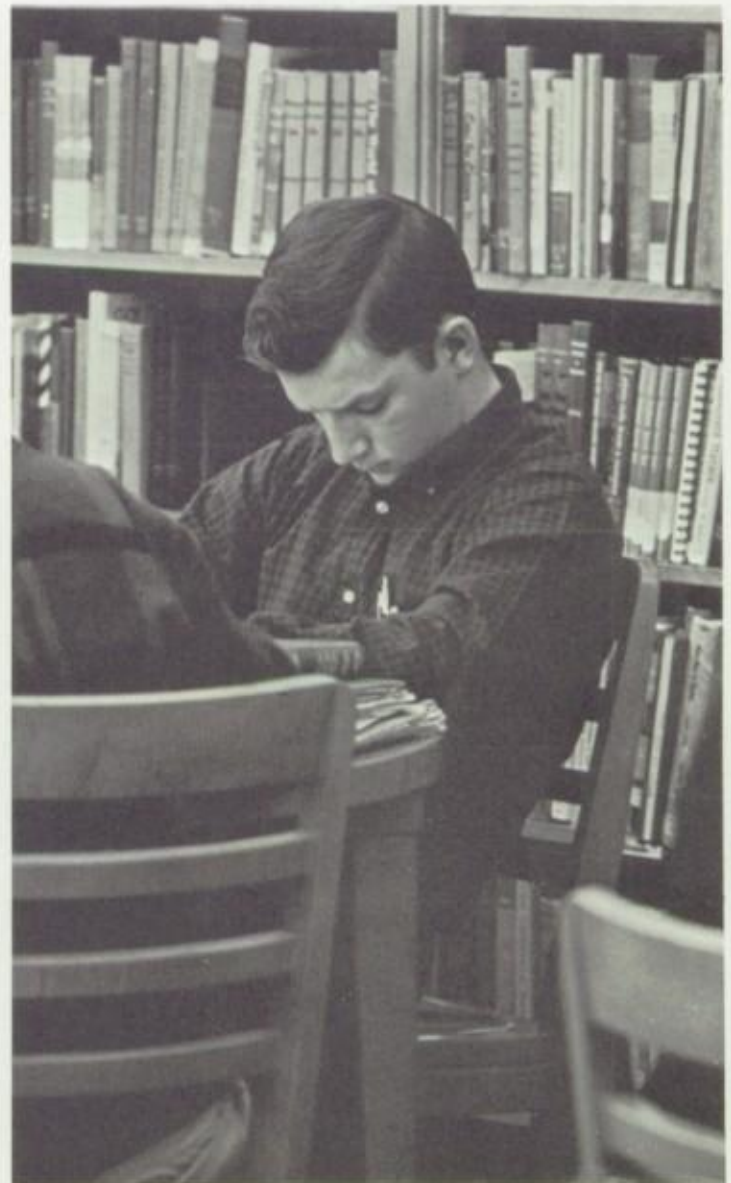

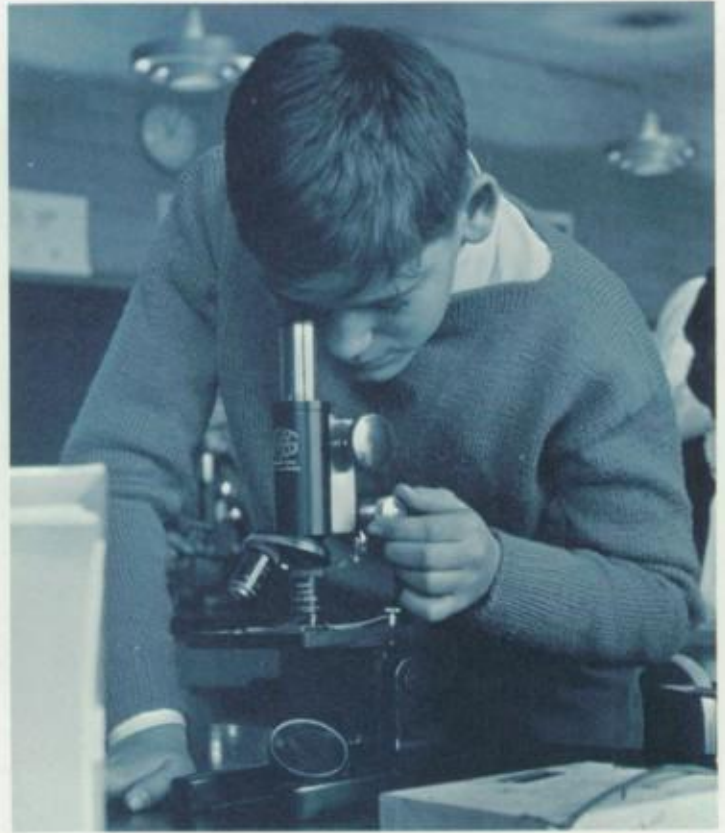

INQUIRY: the search for broad knowledge

The desire for knowledge is reflected in the face of the true student as soon as he is presented with a challenge. Curiosity is in his eyes as he peers into a microscope, as he raises his hand to ask a question, or as he tries to fathom an equation. He strives not only for a formal knowledge but also for the knowledge derived from the experiences of living. Thus, seeking becomes as natural for him as breathing.

SATISFACTION: the joy of accomplishment

In all the drama of the learning process, there is no moment quite so forceful or exhilarating as the moment of accomplishment. In this instant, a challenge has been met — a young girl has finally learned to type, or an English paper has been rewarded with an A; and the results are detected in the student's face and in his voice as he breathes a sigh of relief. Because each player in the Woodward drama portrays many parts, satisfaction takes on many guises; but the pride and pleasure derived from such achievement is the same in all.

THE STAGE IS SET

A plain yet comfortable room provides both students and teachers with their greatest opportunity for increasing their knowledge and understanding. The methods of analysis and problem-solution offered in the classroom make the facts presented in textbooks intelligible to students.

In guiding his students to greater understanding, a teacher offers both his own knowledge and the powerful tools found in the library and laboratory. The ability to animate the lifeless research materials which surround his students is an instructor's greatest asset.

The rising blare from the band room and the feverish tempo of the front hall readily suggest Woodward's circus of activity. The diverse interests encompassed by the extra-curricular program guide the student in his quest for broad knowledge.

The gymnasium harbors a myriad of sensations for individuals who compete, struggle, and toil within its confines. The anxiety and excitement in the face of a screaming spectator and the determination of an athlete combine to portray the emotional intensity of athletics.

ACTIVITIES

FACULTY

The learning process involves a dialogue between the teacher and the student in which ideas are led forth and exchanged. The classroom is but one "stage" for this drama. It can occur on a football field when the quarterback receives last-minute directions from his coach, or in a darkened auditorium when a drama coach explains the interpretation of a play. Wherever this dialogue occurs, there is moment, a spark of awareness in the student, and a thrill for the teacher who finally hears the words, "I understand."

With a family . . .

A teacher who is both a parent and an instructor must have the understanding and love of a parent as well as the unbiased attitude of a teacher. The parent-teacher has the opportunity to observe young people in his home and therefore has added experience to bring to the classroom.

As a coach . . .

Some teachers with academic classes also coach for junior high, reserve, and varsity teams. These men attempt to inspire the player and to impart the importance of discipline. As the student absorbs these two qualities, the precision needed for success results.

As a scholar . . .

All teachers are constantly in search of new material and techniques to pass on to their students. They attend classes at night and during the summers to gain increasing understanding of their own subjects and to earn graduate degrees.

As a friend . . .

By creating a friendly atmosphere in the classroom, a teacher establishes a close relationship with the student. This relationship enables the teacher to encourage the student's interests and to stimulate a desire to learn.

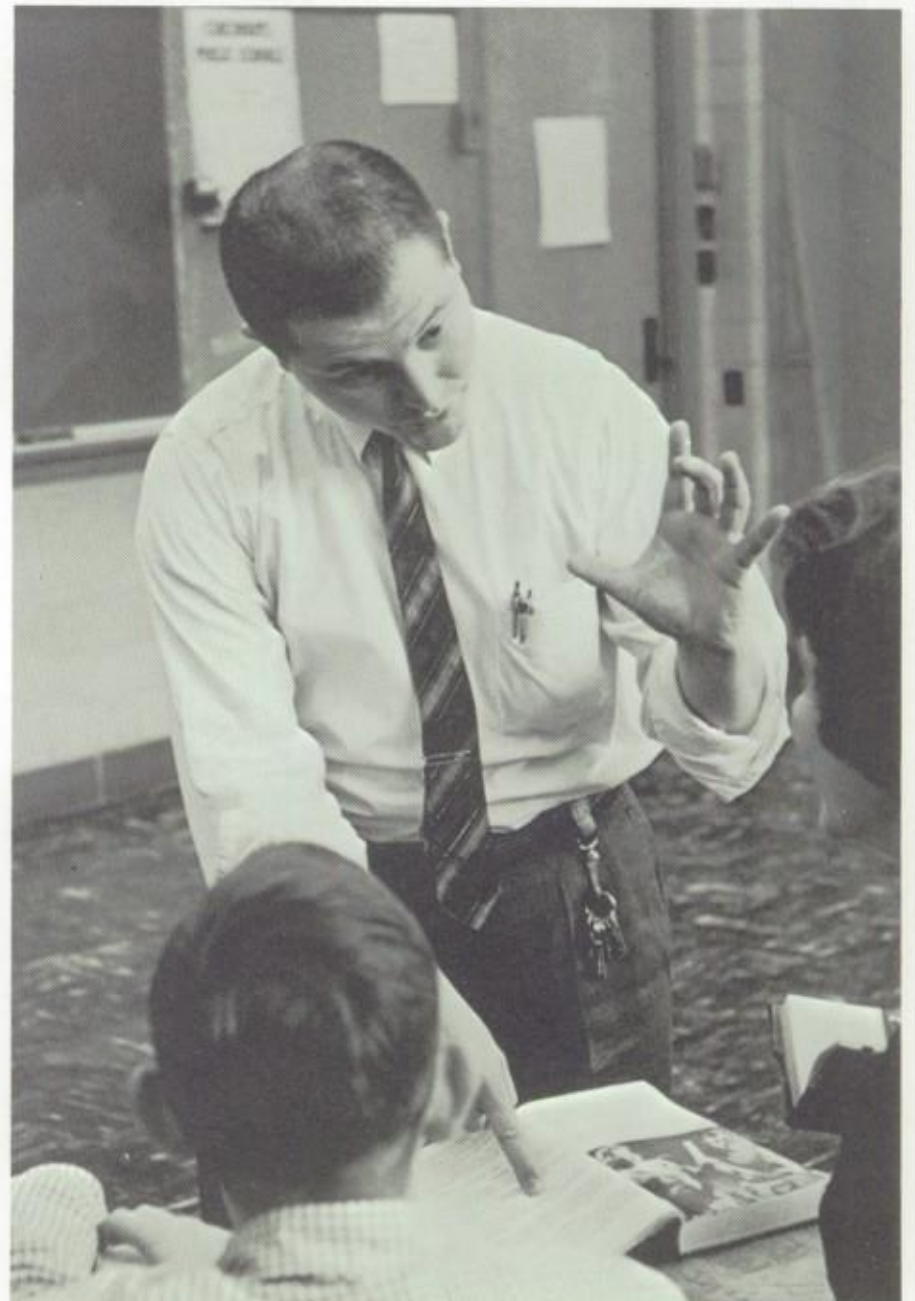

As an advisor . . .

The advisor in an extra-curricular activity can stimulate interest in a particular field through his specialized knowledge. In his encounter with the students on an informal basis, the teacher can demonstrate both how to handle responsibility and how to delegate authority.

. . . but always a Teacher.

No matter how many roles faculty members assume, they are essentially teachers. Their task is to vitalize their store of knowledge, to inspire the student in a quest for more learning, and to give the tools necessary for further study. With this background, the student can become an intelligent and an interesting person.

*All the world's a stage,
And all the men and women merely players.
Shakespeare, AS YOU LIKE IT.*

A prologue was never called for by Shakespeare for a situation like this. In fact, he wrote relatively few prologues for all his dramas. He did, however, always draw attention to the fact that a play existed and succeeded only if minds and imaginations work. The viewers of this annual, a silent production, must likewise imagine the movement and dialogue that occur between the scenes presented here in order to get the full picture of our 1962-1963 performance. It has been the most successful year in which I have had a part.

Cleon J. Wingard

MR. WINGARD

Mr. Arthur Vigard

After having been a member of the staff of Withrow High School for a number of years, Mr. Arthur Vigard assumed the position of senior high school assistant principal at Woodward in 1956. His previous training at St. Olaf College, the University of Illinois, and the University of North Dakota prepared him for his current duties. Each day Mr. Vigard handles admission procedures, as well as attendance and discipline problems. He also regulates the distribution of more than 52,000 textbooks and the issuance of all early excuses, work permits, contract cards, and data forms. Supervising the lunchroom schedules, the business, science, and mathematics departments, as well as aiding in the general administration of the school are among his other responsibilities.

Mr. Eugene Shrimpton

Mr. Eugene Shrimpton, who earned both his Bachelor and Master's Degrees in education at the University of Cincinnati, has been at Woodward for six years. The first year he taught social studies and was senior high activities co-ordinator. Besides being concerned with the discipline and curriculum of more than 1200 students as principal of the junior high, Mr. Shrimpton is also director of the Woodward Evening School. In the evening school, he supervises thirty-four teachers, an adult enrollment of more than a thousand, and a curriculum ranging from Astronomy to Investments to Dressmaking.

Mr. Paul Grimm

Miss Clara Lee Miller

A student entering Woodward for the first time has many questions concerning the school's curriculum, its activities, and other aspects of school life. Answering these questions, preparing schedules, guiding the student in the discovery of his abilities, and advising seniors about colleges and vocations are the primary services of the counseling staff. In a larger sense, the staff acts as a group of sympathetic advisors offering the student possible solutions to any problem he may have.

MRS. ANNA BORCHIN
Senior High Librarian

Cataloguing more than 25,000 books that comprise the Senior and Junior High Libraries is the most obvious task for the librarians, Mrs. Anna Borchin and Mrs. Mary Siddall. Aside from this duty, however, the librarians have a more far-reaching responsibility. With the English teachers, they encourage students to read widely, to read a book not only for plot but also for theme and style. Mrs. Borchin and Mrs. Siddall periodically invite classes to the library to present new books and to explain methods for using the library's facilities.

MRS. MARY SIDDALL
Junior High Librarian

MISS YVONNE BALZER

Woodward's nurse, Miss Yvonne Balzer, cares for an average of fifteen to twenty ill students a day, gives students physical examinations, and keeps up to date more than 3,100 health records.

Miss Ruth Schafstall, the dietician, not only creates the daily menus but also supervises a staff of twenty in the preparation of each meal.

CLASSES

Nearly 4,000 students enter Woodward's doors each weekday morning, mingle in the front hall, and drift off in groups to their classes. Although an outsider might view Woodward as a typical teen-age world with only one "persona," Woodward emphasizes the individual. This is due partly to the varied racial, religious, and social backgrounds of its students. Each has his separate roles — his interests and talents, his triumphs and defeats. A combination of these ideas and energies form Woodward, where mutual interests are shared and individual differences are respected.

... EACH PLAYS MANY PARTS

Crisp air and fall leaves enhanced the mood for Seniors at their Camp Livingston picnic.

Class officers Steve Peck, Dave Wheeler, Lynn Barnaby, and Mel Snyder discuss plans for Senior Class activities with the class advisor, Mr. Louis B. Ruley.

Versatile are the members of the Class of 1963. Becoming with ease the academic and social leaders of Woodward, the seniors set examples for underclassmen by maintaining excellent scholastic averages while participating in a rigorous schedule of extra-curricular activities, serving as officers in many clubs and organizations and as members of superior athletic teams.

Starving Steve Lipson grabs the last doughnut in the Junior Class sale.

Juniors participated in the entire range of high school activities and began the time-consuming task of deciding concretely upon the activities to be pursued after graduation. Their social activities ranged from the informality of the October open house to the lavishness of the Junior Prom in May. Class activities were financed by the fall open house and doughnut sale. Class members did not, however, devote all of their energy solely to social functions. By attending interviews with college representatives; by taking a battery of educational tests, including the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test on October, the Scholastic Aptitude Test in May, and the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test in March; and by studying college catalogues and career opportunities in counselling workshops, Juniors crystallized their future plans and goals.

SOPHOMORES

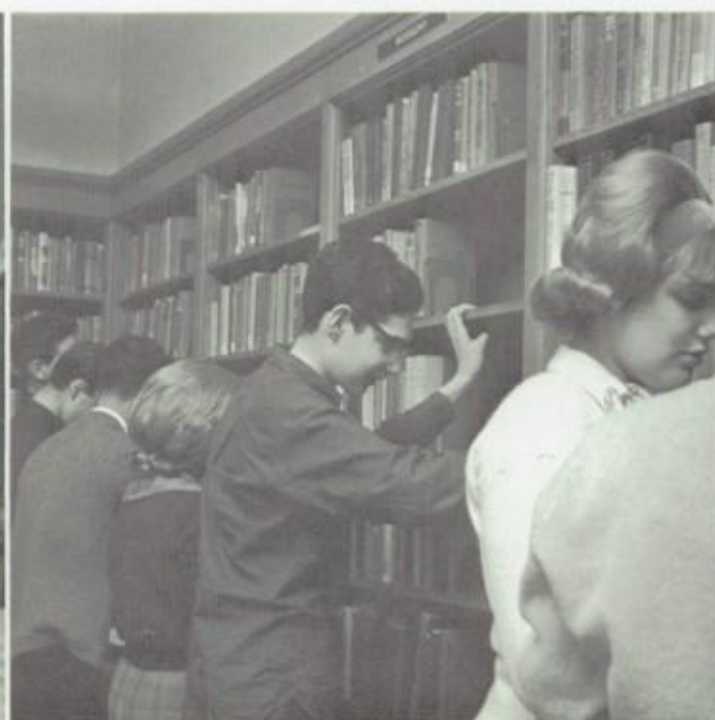

Strolling Sophomore officers are Denni Linder, Secretary; John Kimpel, President, Robin Sevester, Treasurer; and Richard Meyer, Vice-President.

The newest class in the Senior High School put Woodward's newest facility, the quadrangle, to good use early in the year with a Sophomore Hop held under the stars. Sophomores adjusted themselves to the strenuous workload of the senior high school. Although work increased, Sophomores were satisfied by the privileges and good times of senior high life. Future class activities were also considered by the Sophomores as they increased their treasury with an autumn candy sale.

Assuming the leadership of the junior high school was a Freshman class of 390 students. Every junior high activity from cheerleading to Student Council participation numbered many Freshmen among its officers and leaders. Freshmen were honored at the traditional Freshman recognition day for services and leadership which they contributed to Woodward during their junior high years.

Junior High cheerleaders reflect the spirit of the ninth grade class.

SEVENTH GRADE

Seventh grader, Ricky Jennings, diligently attacks his art work.

Somewhat bewildered by a maddening crush in the corridors and a more mature approach to education, a class of seventh graders entered Woodward in September. During a large part of the year, they were acquainted with the intricacies of a cosmopolitan high school by their teachers, counselors, and especially older students. Seventh grade girls were welcomed most hospitably by a group of Senior Big Sisters. The initial shock of a large comprehensive high school dissipated for most neophytes in time for them to enjoy Woodward's diverse life before the close of school in June.

ACTIVITIES

Activities provide a medium which is essential to the enrichment of every student, for the extra-curricular program allows ample opportunity for a developing person to learn to work with others while broadening his classroom or practical knowledge. This program encompasses a multitude of interests, so that there are clubs specializing in most subjects of student concern, ranging from classroom topics to popular hobbies. Valuable leadership experience from student government, stimulating discussions on current events, and conversational practice in foreign languages can all be realized through extra-curricular participation. Club activities are veritably the heartbeat of Woodward.

*Woodward has done it again with the 1963 Showcase.
For the things that have made it grand,
Are terrific crews and the greatest band.
But, we have one thing that's really unique,
Always makes the Showcase just right.
We always get the greatest audience,
You gorgeous gals and handsome gents
Who have the dollars and the sense
To see the Showcase tonight.*

SENIOR DRAMA CLUB

"A Majority of One" and "Death Takes A Holiday," under the direction of Mr. Ronald Aug, were the two major productions of the enterprising Drama Club. A newly initiated project, a series of "repertory" plays produced and directed by students, included "Impromptu," by Tad Mosel, "Undercurrent," and "Castle in the Village." These carefully selected one-act presentations were offered for special showing to other school groups and to the community at large. Showcase rehearsals and preparation of "Summit Conference," Woodward's entry in the Hamilton County Thespian Society contest, also occupied club members. The Drama Club's performances in this annual one-act play competition during the past five years has merited three first-place trophies, a distinction few schools achieve.

SENIOR CHOIR

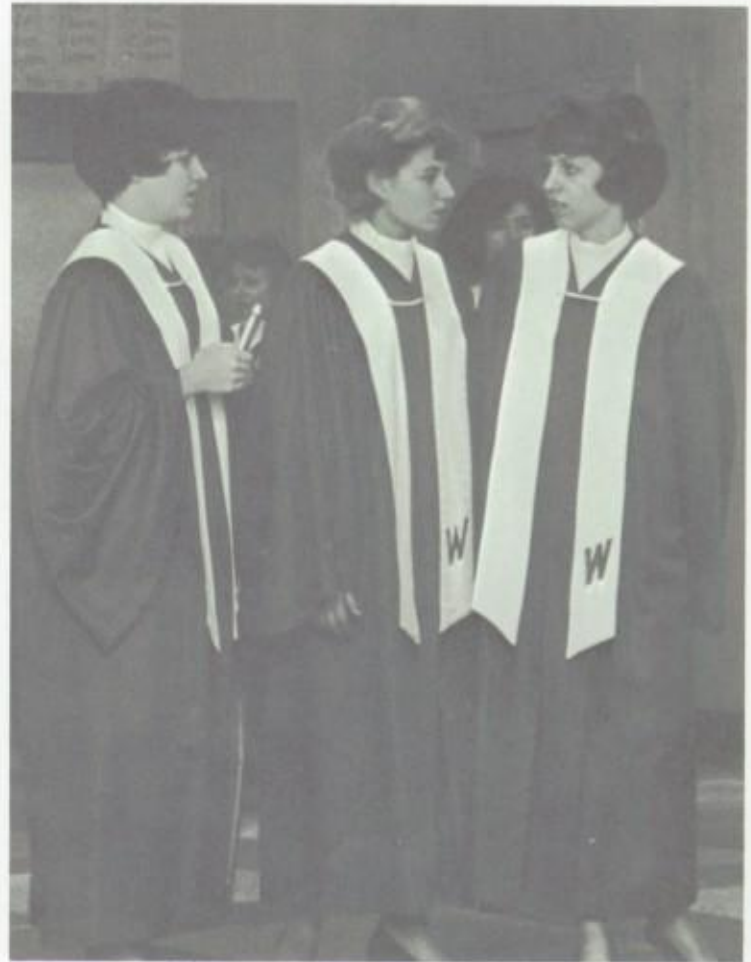

Singing for self-entertainment and public performances, the Senior Choir is a combination of students who have good voices and a memory for music. Each Senior Choir member is chosen on the basis of his singing ability, a desire to learn, and appreciation of the art. Participation, interest, and school grades determine who remains in the choral group. The members, identified by their blue robes and white stoles, sang at the Thanksgiving Assembly, the Christmas and Spring Concerts, and at other numerous concerts.

Directed by Mr. Robert McSpadden, the Senior Choir blended beauty and harmony at the Founder's Day Assembly and the Alumni Reunion. They also participated in " '63 To Get Ready" In the fall, Choir held its annual picnic and open house. The final performance for the year, singing at Commencement exercises, was a memorable experience for the graduating seniors. Throughout the year Senior Choir accomplished its goal of fostering an appreciation and understanding of music as an art.

ENSEMBLE

The ultimate desire of every Senior Choir member is to be chosen as one of the thirty-nine Ensemble vocalists. The members are chosen on the basis of their singing talent, musical knowledge, and appreciation of the art. In order to stay in perfect harmony, the Ensemble members practiced several times during the summer and every day during the school year. Ensemble has a repertoire of over one hundred songs that can be sung at a moment's notice.

"Come all ye faithful."

"O Holy Night."

Woodward's honored choral group, under the direction of Mr. Robert McSpadden, has engaged in an active program this year which included fifteen performances during the Christmas season, television appearances, concerts, and school assemblies. The group, in their traditional blue blazers with white emblems, rounded out the year by singing in Showcase, May Fate, and Class Day. The combination of student talent, beautiful music, and a skilled director has brought the Woodward Ensemble tri-state recognition in the past year.

JUNIOR BAND

The Junior Band, under the direction of Mr. Ernest Wolfe, performs primarily for Junior High activities. The Band plays at all Junior High games and pep assemblies, in addition to playing in the Christmas and Spring Concerts. Basic skills, a desire to play a particular instrument, and an appreciation and understanding of the art are requirements for all Band members. The goal of every Junior Band member is to become a participant in the Senior Band.

Designed to help students to become familiar with the nature of string instruments, both Junior and Senior Ensemble develop the proper performing techniques. Included in the Ensemble are violins, violas, cellos, and basses. The beginning string members strive for membership in the Senior Ensemble.

Entertaining at the Christmas concert, the violins played alone, with the rest of the group providing a background. Under the direction of Mr. Robert Bovie, the group performed at Christmas, Spring concert, and Showcase.

Woodward's spirited Senior Band played an important role in establishing the enthusiasm that pervaded this year's football season. It was not only on the football field and at pep assemblies that the band caused spirit to soar, but also at dances, holiday concerts, Showcase, and at commencement. So great was their skill that Mr. Ernest Wolfe's charges held the distinction of being the only band in the Cincinnati area to be invited to play for the National Football League's Cleveland Browns.

The Bulldog Barks, one of the few weekly high school newspapers in the country, kept students posted on weekly events and published special issues for holidays, the annual Writer's Contest, and Class Day. Each issue contained complete coverage of school and social functions, sports highlights, editorials, and feature stories about student and faculty personalities. This year for the first time Mr. Charles Warman's journalists prepared news items for thirteen neighborhood newspapers.

The 1963 Woodward Treasures staff, under the supervision of Miss Helen Davis and Mr. William Lippert, combined the talents of 23 students in order to produce a yearbook with many innovations. Beginning in the summer, the staff met in special sessions to determine the theme of the book and worked through the entire school year developing this theme primarily through the use of unusual candid pictures.

Although engrossed in the publication of the annual, the staff found time to sponsor an open house, enjoy a dinner party, and solidly trounce the Bulldog Barks staff in a well-attended basketball game.

SPANISH CLUB

French Club commenced the year with a surprise birthday party for its sponsor, Mr. Thomas D'Amico, and his daughter. The first annual fashion show, a money making project, was inaugurated to help finance several excursions to French restaurants. Other activities included the French Club picnic and Christmas party. Highlighting the year was a joint meeting with the Shroder Junior High French Club.

Spanish Club's most rewarding activity was a special showing of the color slides Mrs. Gotay took while living in Mexico. The problems of Latin America and present day Spain were discussed at the club's monthly meetings. Among this year's other activities were the annual Christmas party and fiesta. Spanish Club's co-sponsors are Miss Gloria Meyer and Mrs. Joan Gotay.

GERMAN CLUB

Woodward's German Club, under the leadership of Mr. Robert Conard, strived to afford its members an opportunity to put their German to practical use. This end was achieved through informal conversations, a German song fest, and visits to a German restaurant. "Der Zeitgeist," German Club's name, means "Spirit of the Times". A new innovation, lectures by native German speakers, attempted to familiarize the students with the culture, life, and customs of Germany.

Inquisitive Latin students, interested in learning about ancient Roman customs, made up the membership of this year's Latin Club. Under the auspices of Miss Elizabeth Rottenburger, Latin Club members gained an appreciation of the Latin language by presenting several of the traditional Roman plays. Latin Club extended its scope of activities by joining the Cincinnati Classical Association.

The fifty-two juniors and seniors who are members of the Woodward chapter of National Honor Society directed their efforts toward several fund-raising projects and to the newly initiated tutorial system. Such activity helped in fulfilling members' pledges of truth, scholarship, character, and service. New society members, chosen for their scholastic achievement and character, were initiated by the society's advisor, Miss Maita Levine, at the annual banquet in November. At their monthly meetings, society members planned service projects and several social events.

Like its sister organization, the Senior Honor Society, the National Junior Honor Society encourages and recognizes superiority in scholarship, citizenship, leadership, and service. Under the supervision of Miss Mildred Nickell, the Junior Honor Society devoted many hours of service to the school by serving at the Senior Honor Society initiation banquet, ushering at the Parents' Open House, and welcoming and serving alumni on Founder's Day. The highlight of this year's activities was the June initiation of junior high students who had met Honor Society requirements throughout the year.

Arousing a spirited reaction about all student activity as well as at all sports events occupies much of the pep club member's time. In order to build school spirit, the Junior and Senior Pep Clubs, under the co-sponsorship of Miss Wanda Lunsford and Mr. Ted Diesenroth, plan the sixth period assemblies, Blue and White Day, charter buses to all Woodward games, sell shakers and programs, and sponsor the annual Senior Popularity Poll.

DEBATE TEAM

After hours of research in the public library and months of practice debating on the proposition, "Resolved, that the United States should promote a common market for the Western Hemisphere," the Woodward debaters were molded into one of the strongest teams in Southern Ohio. The four varsity debaters finished at or near the top in each of the ten statewide tournaments they entered. By the end of the season, five of Woodward's novice debaters had been elected members of the National Forensic League.

COWA

The Woodward Council on World Affairs brings together those students who have a common interest in the events occurring in the modern world. The council meets once a month with a speaker who presents a topic for discussion and debate. In September, Charles M. Judd, city charter party leader, spoke on "Nationalism and Its Relationship to American Foreign Policy." In October, Dr. Daniel Beaver, associate professor of history at the University of Cincinnati, discussed the Cuban crisis. Highlight of the November session, a joint affair with twenty-two other area schools, was a discussion concerning the American image abroad led by Mr. Brian Battey, special associate to the policy director of the United States Information Agency.

BIG SISTERS

Gee, is it really caviar?

There goes Dave Koffler with two girls!

Big Sisters is a group of seventy-five select seniors who help seventh grade girls become better acquainted with Woodward's social and academic life. Throughout the year, every Big Sister takes her little sister to a football game, a Drama Club play, and Showcase. A February party, including favors, refreshments, and entertainment, was given in the Meridian Room for the group of new girls. By having several junior high organization leaders discuss briefly their club's activities at the February party, the Big Sisters helped their little sisters obtain a greater enthusiasm for Woodward activities.

FTA

F.T.A. members practice future profession.

Future Teachers of America, under the direction of Miss Ruby Compton, gives the student a clear and precise picture of the responsibilities, enticements, and disadvantages of being a teacher. Development of a professional attitude is accomplished by allowing the members to work with elementary and high school students in situations where they may see and begin to understand the true art of teaching. Each member not only teaches an elementary class, but is given the opportunity to correct papers, take attendance, and supervise recesses. Thus the prospective teacher is given a wide and comprehensive view of the teaching profession.

ART LEAGUE

Decorating the front hall and the quadrangle are only two of the jobs that Art League performs at Woodward. During the Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Easter holidays, the school is a mass of bright bulbs and shiny decorations. This is all the work of Art League. Under the supervision of Mr. William Marshall, Art League's main goal is to beautify the school. The annual carnation sale and open house raise money for Art League to continue its work.

SPORTS

The student finds in athletic preparation striking similarities to that creative conflict which he will experience in adult life. He sets for himself the goal of perfection, meets keen, determined competition, and learns that success is a combination of training, spirit, and drive. The school athlete lives through triumph and defeat, reward and frustration, hard work and criticism, gaining a better understanding of life. The drama in each game infuses spectator as well as player with pride and love for his school. Such devotion can be sensed from the fervor of a roaring cheering section, the exaltation of victorious athletes, or even the salty tears of defeat.

FOOTBALL

Woodward's fighting Bulldogs, with their traditionally tough schedule, once again terminated a highly successful season with an impressive 5—3—1 overall record. Most of their losses coming in non-league encounters, the Bulldogs sported a 4—1—1 league slate at season's end, capturing second place in the Public High School League.

Under the skillful leadership of former University of Cincinnati star Jack Campbell and his assistant, Art Paul, the Bulldogs emerged as league favorites after going unnoticed in pre-season forecasting. Coach Campbell shrewdly utilized the team's available personnel, transforming a squad with seemingly limited talent into a league threat.

Set! Blue! Ready Hike!

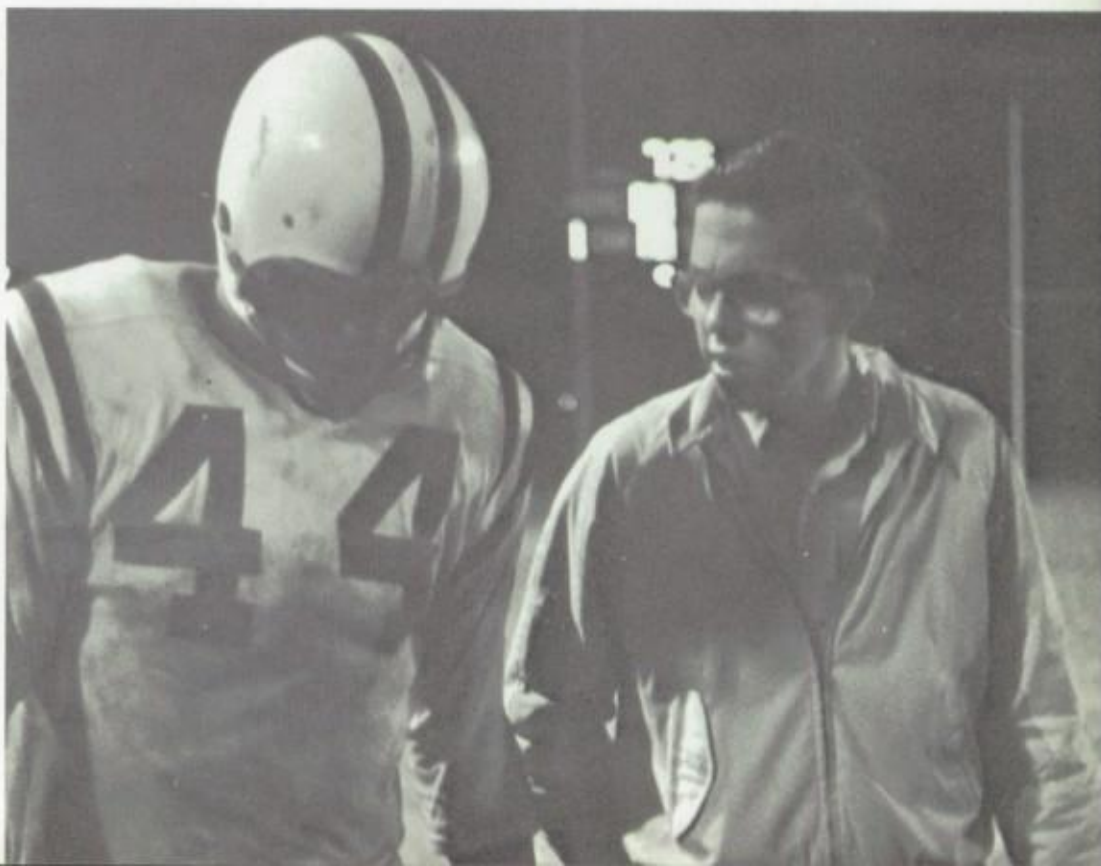

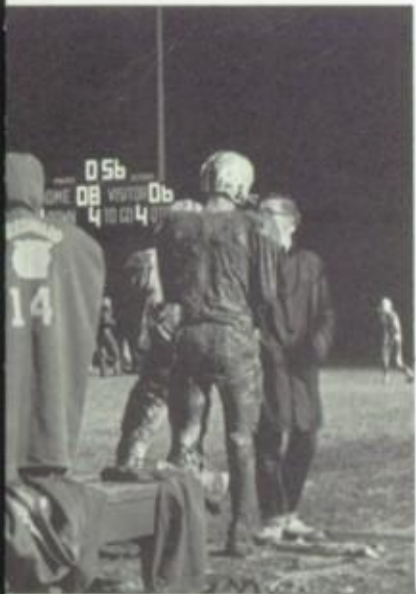

Woodward opened its season against a big Wyoming squad still smarting from a 21—0 loss to the 1961 Bulldogs. This year, however, Wyoming's powerful defense proved too formidable for the untested Bulldogs who fell, 0—18.

St. Xavier's Bombers were the solid favorites to trounce the Bulldogs, shut out the week before. Swift halfback, Don Sherrill, and blockbusting fullback, Clem Turner, proved to be the opposition's nemesis. They teamed up for four touchdowns as Woodward unleashed its previously unexhibited scoring punch on the unsuspecting Bombers, 26—8.

Withrow's league favorites were the next victims for the Bulldog scoring machine. The Tigers were all but beautiful as they lined up for the kickoff; and they were all but bewildered at the game's end, for the Bulldogs outplayed and outscored the stunned Tigers, 18—0.

The Big Reds of Hughes were easy marks for the Woodward offense which continued to roll up touchdowns, while the staunch defense held the Reds scoreless. The Bulldogs were never in trouble as they marked up their third victory, 22—0.

Winning always involves some losing.

Woodward..... 16;	Western Hills 6

Another first down by Clem Turner.

Woodward, plagued by injuries at key positions, crossed the river for a non-league contest with the Highland Bluebirds, Kentucky state champions. Woodward's injuries, combined with Highlands speedy backs, spelled disaster for the Bulldogs as they dropped their second decision of the campaign, 6—27.

The Walnut Hills Eagles, Woodward's traditional rivals, were no match for a Bulldog squad improving with each game. Woodward's tough defense forced the Eagles into innumerable errors while the Bulldogs' un-failing ground play defeated the Eagles, 22—0.

The Central Knights, a team much better than their record indicated, proved to be the first obstacle for the Bulldogs' title hopes. Only Woodward's intense desire saved the game as the Bulldogs marched from midfield to push across their final score with only seconds remaining. The extra points failed and Woodward settled for a 20—20 deadlock.

The game with the Taft Senators decided the P.H.S.L. championship. Both sides fought gamely, but the Bulldogs wound up on the short end of the scoring as their title hopes were extinguished, 16—18.

Tenacious defense such as this led to the 26—8 victory over St. X.

The Bulldogs ended the season with a league win by defeating the Western Hills Mustangs on a rain soaked quagmire. Neither team was able to score in the first half because of the thick mud, but the spirited Bulldogs returned and sloshed to a 16—6 victory.

Thus Woodward's fighting Bulldogs ended another fine season capturing second place in Public High School League competition behind Taft and Withrow, who tied for the first position. Desire and determination were the outstanding traits of this year's squad, and only with these qualities were the Bulldogs able to climb to the runner-up position in a close league race. And with outstanding juniors and sophomores backed by a powerful reserve squad, next year's prospects appear promising.

Woodward's promising reserve team, the backbone of next year's Varsity, concluded its season with a 3—3—1 record. These results placed the squad fourth behind Aiken, Taft, and Central. Coach Walter Gordon's comment on the team expressed the feeling that the Reserves had attained the goal they had set for themselves by gaining valuable experience to be utilized next year. With all players possessing commendable merit, the Varsity coaches will have a veritable grab bag of talent to choose from. Sophomores Kimpel, Friedberg, Cettel, Glass, and Davis stood out as this year's stars.

The team reached its full strength in its encounter with the strong Withrow team as Woodward's defense held the Tigers to six points and a minimum of first downs. In other League contests, Quarterback Bob Wilkinson, utilizing the end run most effectively, piloted the spirited team to decisive victories over Aiken, Hughes, and Walnut Hills. These three victories, consecutively at the season's start, were followed by a succession of discouraging defeats at the hands of Withrow, Western Hills, and Taft. The team concluded the season with a redeeming tie against powerful rival, Central.

A young and inexperienced Junior High Football Team battled through a tough schedule this season. The team had great desire but lack of depth as they emerged winless through their competition. With a 0—7 record, they had to settle with last place in the Junior High East League. The Bullpups' best efforts came in the Eastern Hills game when they came out on the short end of a 6—14 score. Coaches Sid Friedman and Mel Russel look forward to next season when they hope to have more experience and more participation from junior high boys.

This year's Cross Country Team sweated and strained through 2,800 miles of preparatory running, looking forward to their league and district encounters. They finished the season a discouraging seventh out of eighth, but the Woodward harriers foresee a more impressive show of strength during next year's competition. Four returning varsity lettermen will then make this years experience pay off.

BASKETBALL

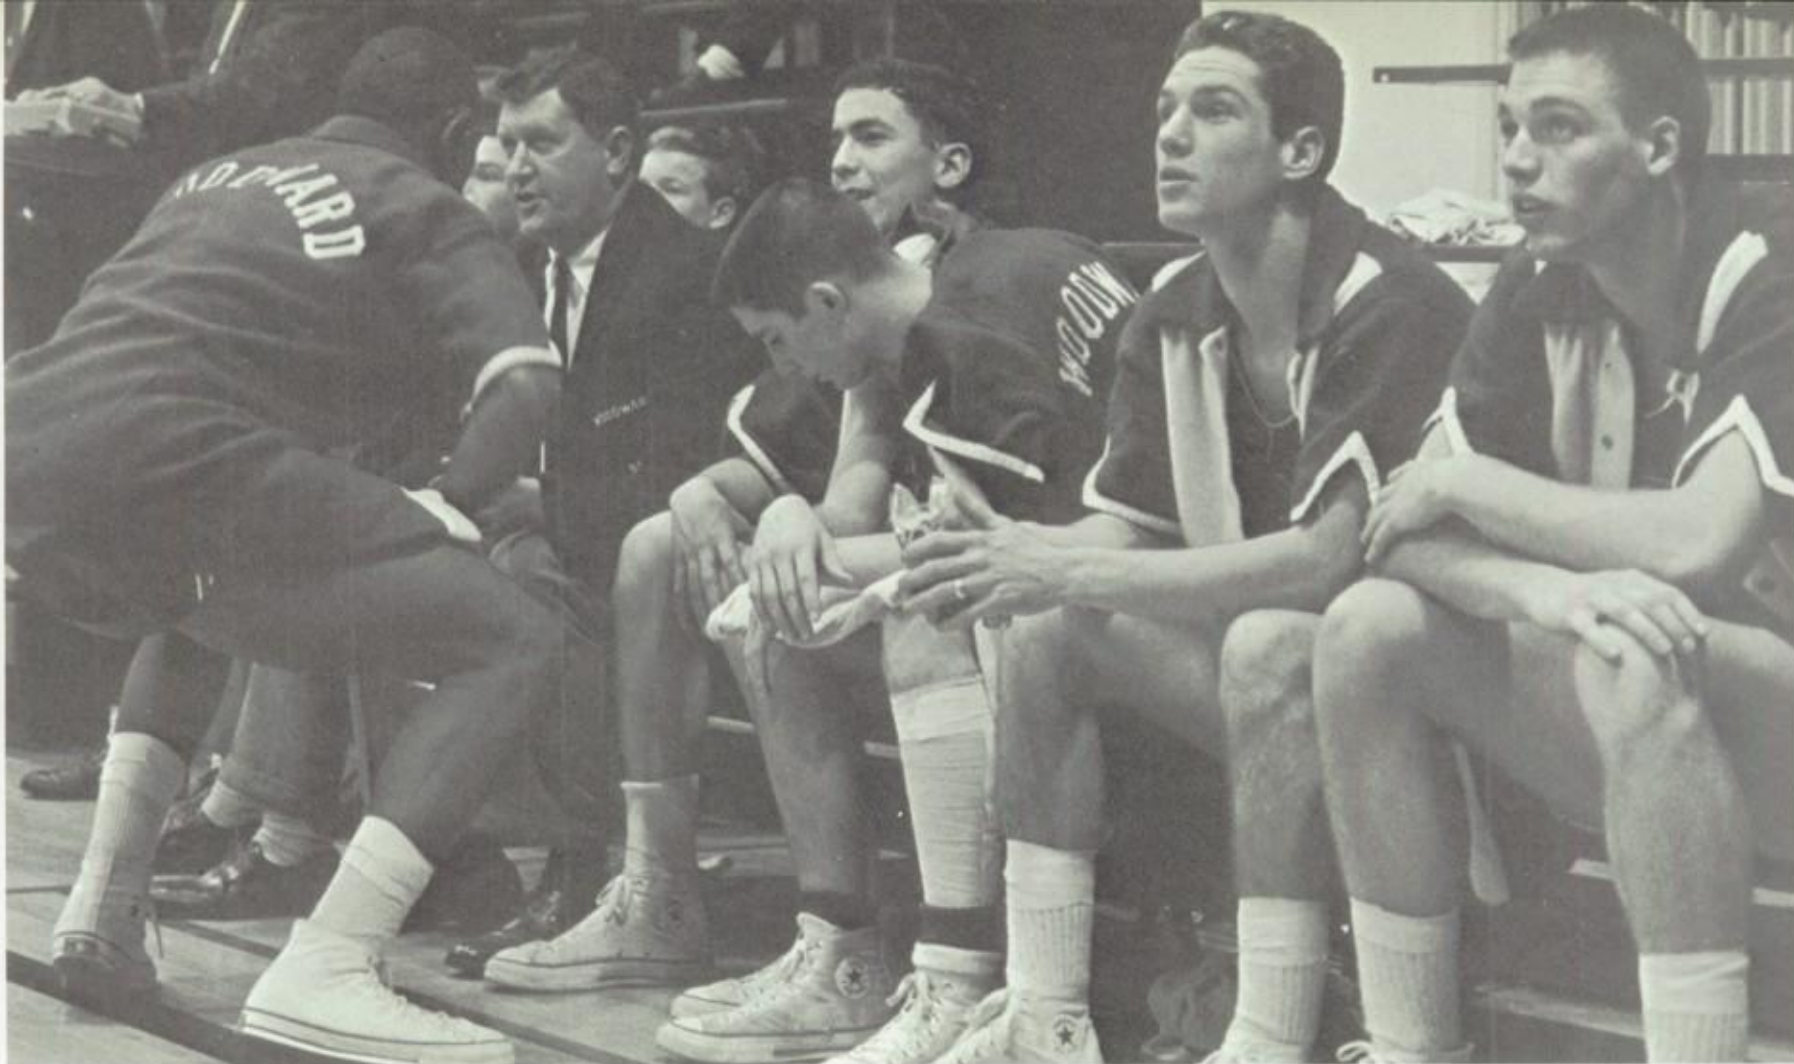

The Woodward Varsity Basketball Team exploited the qualities of depth and experience in striving toward a successful season. Making use of his well balanced team, head basketball coach Sid Friedman exercised an average of thirteen players a game. The squad, made up of a spirited group of Seniors and Juniors, was led by Co-Captains Mendeny Fisher and Ardie Hunt. Other seniors on the team were forwards Ron Kellerman, Ed Harris, and Pete Rosenwald, and centers Tom Ballard and Larry Curtis. These Seniors were accompanied by a fine group of Juniors who handled a great deal of playing chores. The squad began practice as a team in November, and after one month of preparation embarked on an eighteen game season.

The Bulldogs started the season with a rough schedule facing them, but with high aspirations. They suffered two early defeats at the hands of St. Xavier and Princeton, both non-league foes. Entering league play against Hughes, they scored a victory. Tough opposition kept the Woodward team down, but it managed to maintain an even record. A victory over the title contender Central and a two point overtime loss to league leader Taft highlighted the campaign for the Bulldogs. They continued from there and terminated the season with a respectable record.

The success of the season was not only measured in the won-loss record. The standout performances of Juniors Tom Dyer, Larry Kahn, and Howard Goodwin made evident the possibilities for next year. With those boys to build on, other Junior Varsity members developing rapidly, and a strong, talented Reserve squad to choose from, Coach Sid Friedman will find it easy to build a fine team.

The Woodward Bulldog Reserves experienced a season spiced with a multitude of close-scoring games. The early season trend was against the Bulldogs, but steady improvement enabled them to build up a respectable record by the season's end. Teams such as Walnut Hills and Central beat Woodward by slim margins in the opening weeks of the campaign. These same teams fell before Coach John Mayberry's team as the season drew to a close.

Mr. Nick Weiler, who returned to coaching after a two year absence, guided the 1963 Junior High Basketball Team through a tough fourteen game schedule. Despite a losing season, the team gained some important experience. The Bullpups' record was marked with many close contests, such as the four point overtime loss to Shroder and a two point win over Lyon. Scoring leaders for the team were Ken Kendricks, Rick Skurow, Ray Burge, Barry Burrell, and Al Berg.

SWIMMING

The 1963 Woodward Swimming Team continued to be among the three top teams in the Public High School League. Guided by captain Barry Talley, the Bulldogs finished in third place behind Western Hills and Walnut Hills High Schools. Talley was a consistent double winner during the three-meet competition, while swimming the 200 and 100 yard freestyle events.

The mermen were undefeated in dual meet competition and succeeded in conquering Walnut Hills in a quadrangular meet. Coach Mel Russell and his swimmers also competed in the Southwestern Ohio District and the First Annual Miami University Relay Meets. Woodward concluded their successful season with a trip to Columbus where they competed in the Ohio State Swimming Championships.

Woodward's 1963 Varsity Gym Team broke Central High School's sovereignty in Ohio state gymnastics. The team displayed its abilities as it went undefeated in Public High School competition. After the three-meet competition the Bulldogs walked away with the championship. Coach Bob Anderson prepared his team by requiring his gymnasts to work out on all equipment, not just on their specialty. Despite the loss of four valuable seniors, Larry Murray, Dale Pritchett, Russ Buccerie, and Dave Spencer, the team looks forward to retaining its championship next year.

TRACK

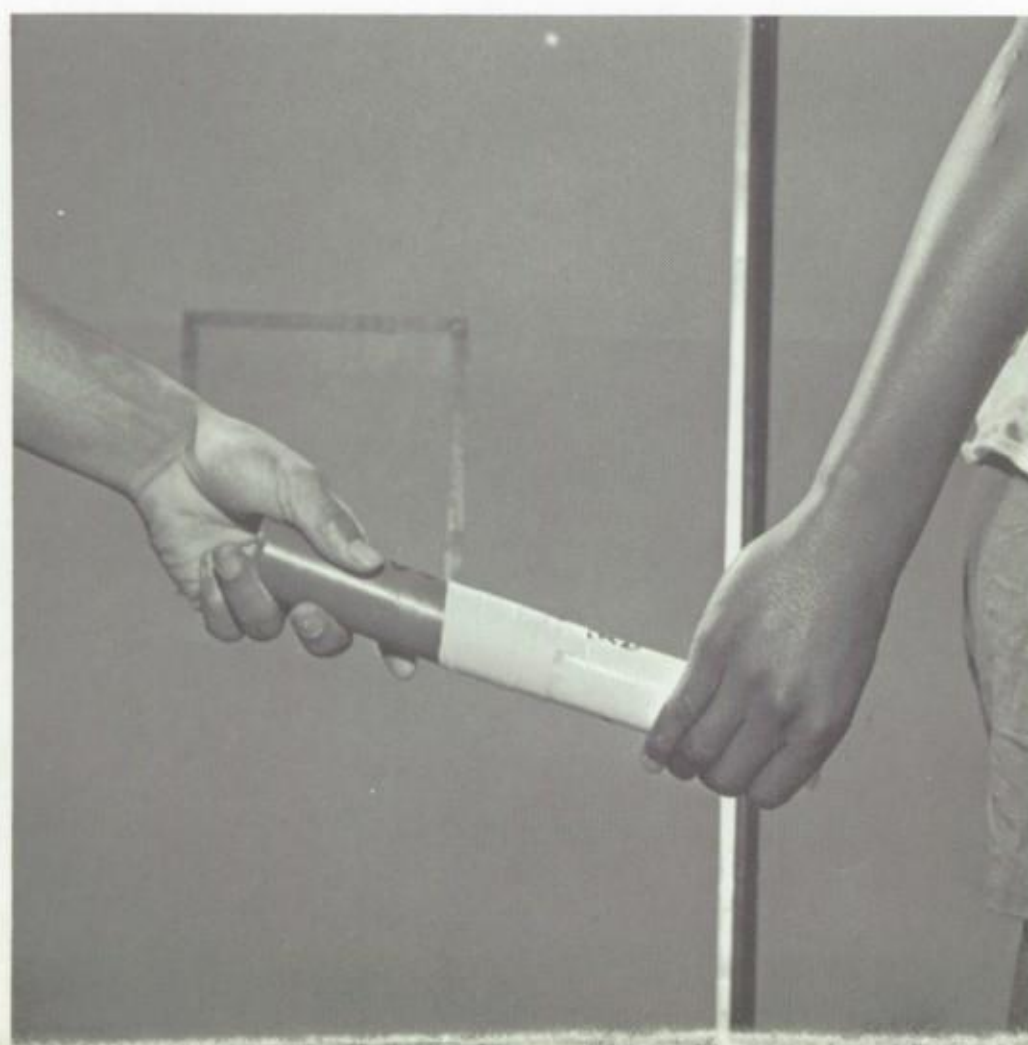

The 1963 Woodward Track Team, under the tutelage of newly appointed Coach Art Paul, got off to a slow start because of the inclement weather of March and April. There is little doubt that this talented team will bring many victories to Woodward. The nucleus of the team will probably be composed of returning letterman Tom Ballard, Tom Dyer, Larry Hawkins, JoJo Hayes, Ron Kellerman, Dave Koffler, Cecil Osborn, Bill Ribarsky, and Harrison Simms. Prospects like Andy Abrams, Alan Arkush, Steve Lipson, Virgil Parker, and Dave Wolf will no doubt add to the teams strength.

The intense excitement generated by close athletic competition is heightened by the spirited encouragement of Woodward's cheerleaders. These dedicated girls lend both beauty and enthusiasm to the football-basketball season.

Closely allied are the Woodward majorettes, the high-stepping leaders of the Woodward marching band. Through their practiced maneuvers they give precision and glamour to the football halftime shows.

MODERN DANCE

The Modern Dance Club provides Woodward girls with an excellent opportunity to study the finer points of dancing. An interest in the origins and history of modern dance is aroused in the participating girls. Under the leadership of Mrs. Euris Bryant, the club prepares routines for a mother-daughter tea, the Woodward Showcase, and the Woodward May Fete.

In June, the Woodward student has an opportunity to reflect upon the year that has just ended for him. With a sigh of relief or a bit of sadness, he remembers all the bits and pieces that together formed the Woodward drama. Whether or not the student consciously remembers each of the roles he has assumed during the year, there is no doubt that he exits with his character more clearly defined than it was at the time of his entrance.

ADVERTISING

Within the halls of Woodward High School, a stage is set and filled by its students as actors called upon to play many parts. There exists, however, a greater stage exceedingly abundant in players and parts. This is the stage encompassed by the City. It is in the City where the larger drama of life takes place. And yet the City cannot exist without a significant intertwining of business. Business, coupled with its advertising, guide and affect our lives on the immense "stage" that is Cincinnati.

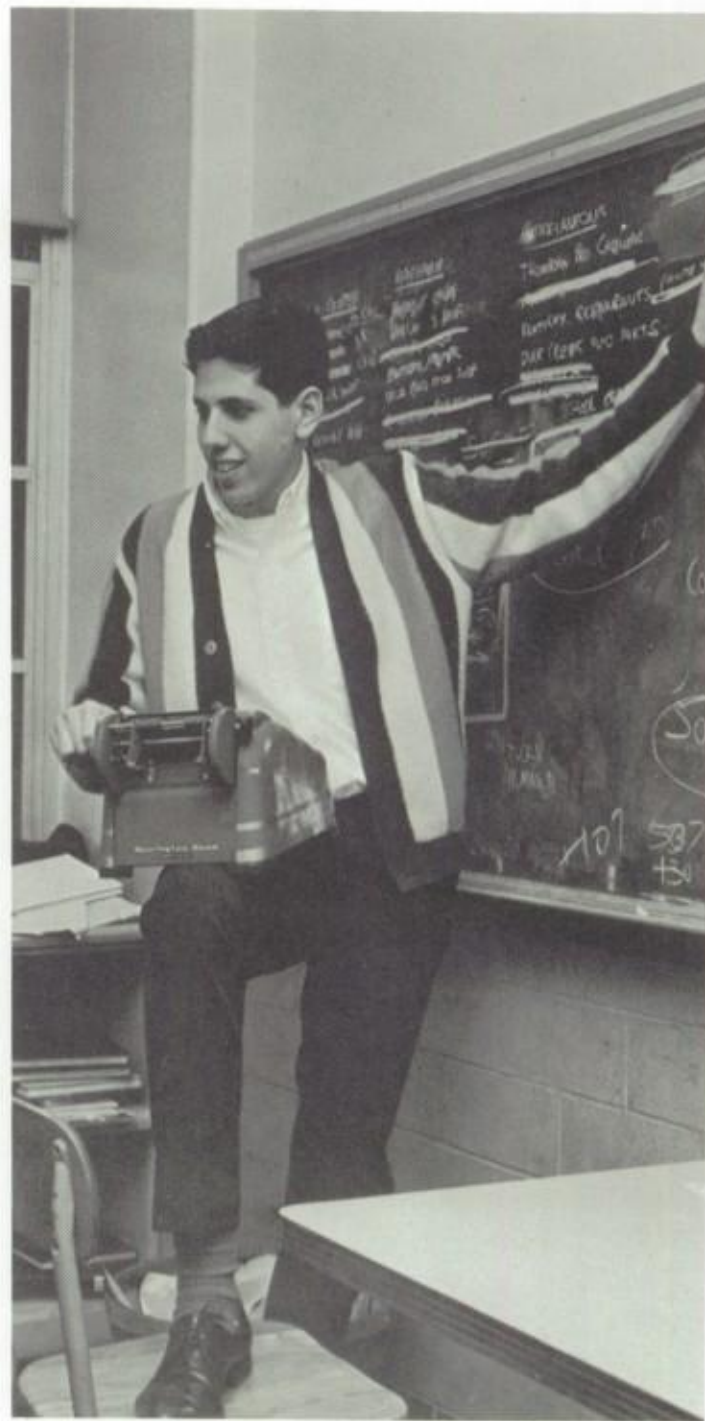

"Hey Carl! What about the Marines?"

With unrelenting determination and a continuous onslaught upon benevolent businessmen, the business staff successfully managed to finance, in part, the 1963 Woodward Treasures. To accomplish this impressive feat, the persevering Mel Snyder and his small staff obtained 50 business, 30 home room, and 15 school organization advertisements. Promotion manager, the inimitable Carl Rheins, organized the successful annual open house and negotiated the hilarious basketball game with the newspaper staff. The end result: a record-breaking advertising section.

"Naw, Chief, they don't advertise."

"You think other schools work this hard?"

THE WOODWARD HIGH SCHOOL ALUMNAL ASSOCIATION

Your Alumna Association, as is Woodward High School, is the oldest such organization west of the Allegheny Mountains. It is also one of the largest and most active in the entire nation. In addition its members have numbered such personages as a President of the United States, Senators, Congressmen, Admirals, Generals, Educators, Professional People and many others who have distinguished themselves locally, nationally and internationally. Truly, the graduates of Woodward High School have something to be proud of, something that the majority of high school graduates and even some college graduates don't have — heritage, a heritage that is embodied in and perpetuated by the Alumna Association.

The Alumna Association continually strives to enhance this heritage. This is accomplished in many ways. The most recent is through the Elsa and Cliff Heisel Medal of Merit Award. This medal is awarded on a strictly academic basis to the student who attains the highest four year academic record. This medal was awarded for the first time to a student of the 1962 Graduating Class.

That's the new Princess phone. Think what a joy to use a phone that's scarcely bigger than your hand — that feels light as a feather — with a dial that glows softly and lights up brightly whenever you pick up the receiver. You'll enjoy calls more in your own room on your own Princess phone. And, the monthly charge is so low that you may be able to pay for a Princess extension yourself. GOOD LUCK TO THE
 CLASS OF '63

Seniors,

"Always you have been told that work is a curse and labor is a misfortune.

But I say that when you work you fulfill a part of earth's furthest dream assigned to you when that dream was born,

And in keeping yourself with labor you are in truth loving life,

And to love life through labor is to be intimate with life's inmost secret."

Homeroom 250 hopes that the wisdom expressed by Kahlil Gibran in THE PROPHET will help you realize the true value of your future endeavors in whatever field you enter.

Remember - -

It's 63 to get ready;

To The Reader:

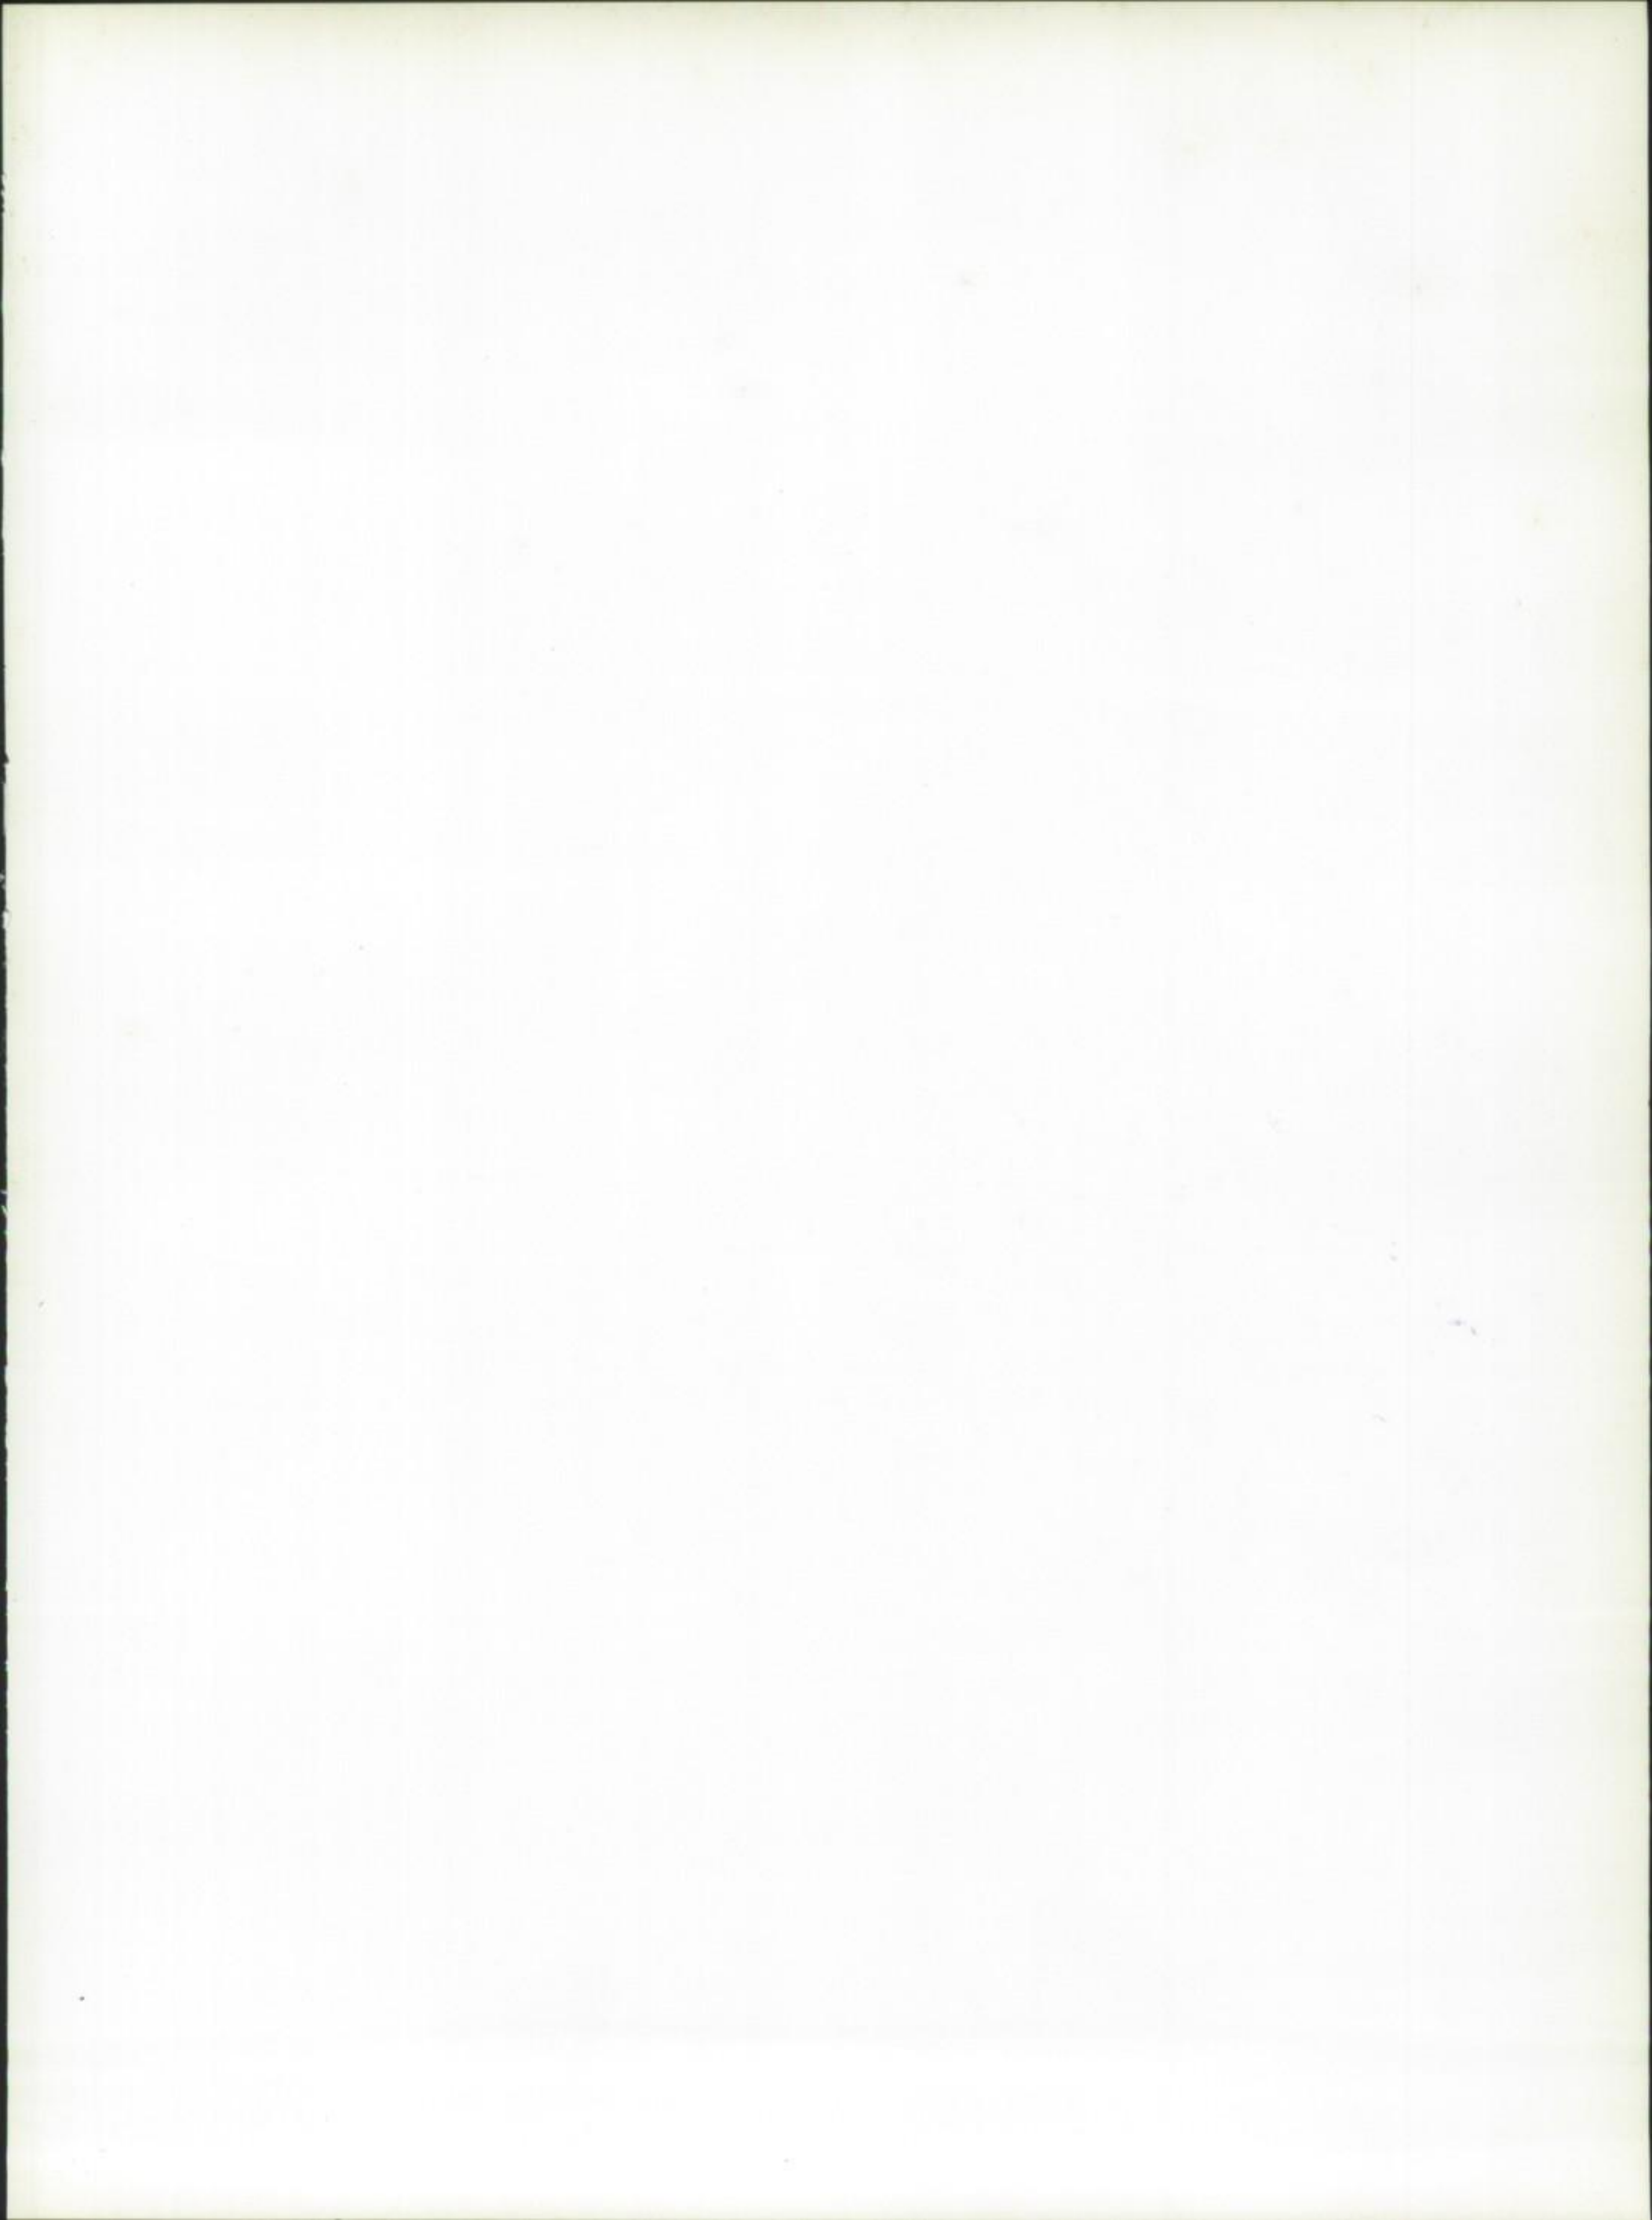

Our purpose has been to portray the scholastic and extra-curricular life at Woodward in representative and memorable pictures. As a result, we have produced the largest of all Woodward annuals fittingly tinted in the traditional blue and white. Rather than posed shots and voluminous copy, we have told our story in candid photographs. Some of the noteworthy innovations are the large typical views of the faculty, pictured class activities, action shots of organizations, and an extended and unifying theme. The result is a book planned, designed, and produced in the main by Woodward seniors.

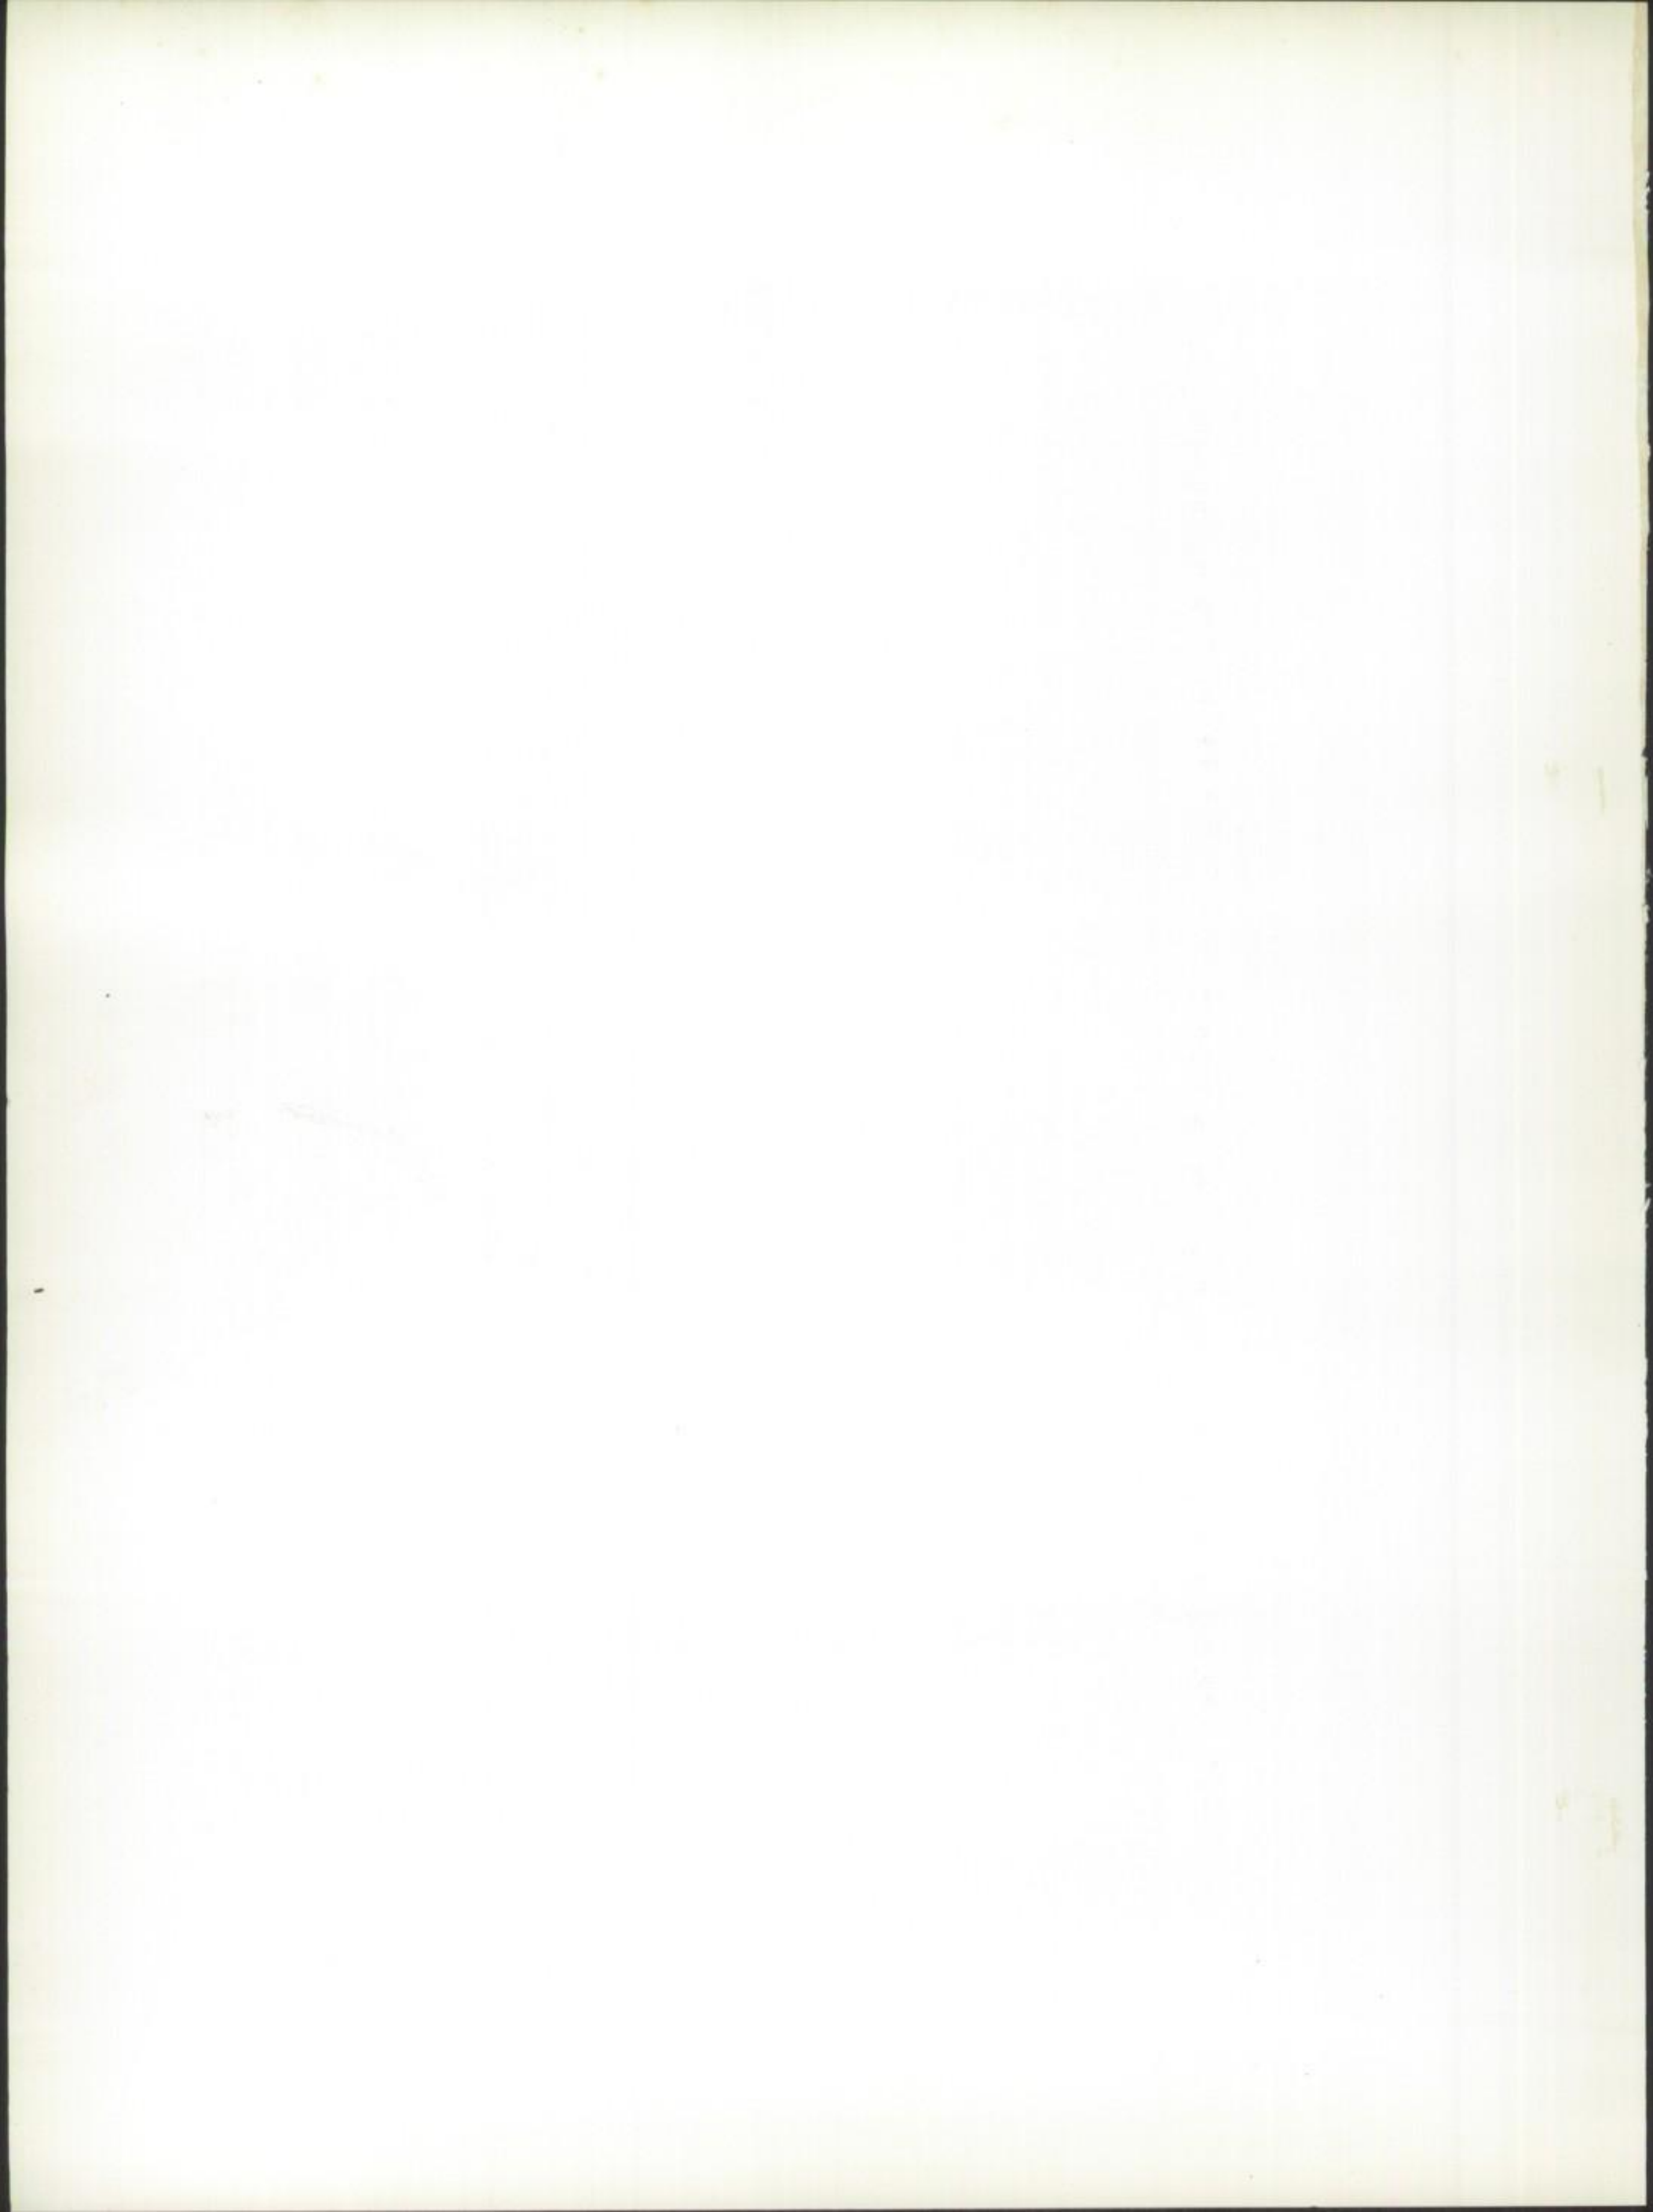

I would like to give personal thanks to my cooperative and responsible editors and business staff. The invaluable aid of adult advisers, Miss Helen Davis, Mr. William Lippert, Mr. Pat McKenrick, and Mr. Carl Vorpe, was generously available. There are many others to thank, but I hesitate to continue for fear of missing some, so I now thank everyone who contributed to the 1963 TREASURES.

Cheri,
Well graduation
is just around the corner.
I'm glad school is just about over, but it really hasn't been too unbearable (with our expenses for Swifton etc). I hope in the coming years everything turns out just right for you because you're a darling girl and deserve the best.
I hope that I get to see you somewhere sometime next year.
Best of Luck always Love Julie
KJB

To Cherri,
It has been an extreme pleasure knowing you and being with you. I know our friendship will last forever.
"May all your dreams come true"

Love,
Aaron Bar ("A.B.")
